She Didn't Dance.

In 1736 a gentleman living in Hampshire, England, named Samuel Baldwin, died after a rather stormy and most unhappy married life. In his will he directed that all his vast estate be given his wife on condition that she should dance upon his grave from time to time. As the will further instructed that his remains should be taken by boat to the Needles and from there cast into the sea, this, of course, prevented his widow from fulfilling the conditions of the will and thus lost her the property. He, however, had his revenge for the various tempers she had exhibited and for the remarks she often made that she would yet "dance upon his grave."

Corrected. New Maid-Please, malam, when bring the dinner in should I say "Din ner's ready" or "Dinner's served?" Mistress-Well, if it's like it was yes terday you'd better say "Dinner is Logical, but Incorrect. "Nora," said the mistress to the new servant, "we always want our meals promptly on the hour." "Yis, mum. An' if I miss th' first iour shall I wait for th' next?"-Bit mingham Age-Herald.

A Good Reason. She-Why did Mabel refuse you? He -Because I could not support her in a style she is unaccustomed to.

CLEAN WATER FOR HORSES.

Horse Fountain Newly Erested at Spokane Seems to Meet the Need. Two years ago the commissioner of orblic utilities of Spokane in a conversation with the Washington state veterinarian was informed that the public horse watering trough was responsible for the spreading of disease among the horses and that some other means of furnishing water for horses was desirable, writes C. M. Fassett, commission of public utilities at Spokane, Wash. the American City. Correspondence her cities where improved meth ere said to have been adopted Led to elicit the desired information. the superintendent of water prorecited to design a new system, which has resulted in the building of the horse fountain shown in the photograph. It has been in use only it few weeks, but it seems to meet the need.

Water is supplied from the city nains through a three-quarter inch tap. The two Calves are below the frost line and are counterweighted stop and waste valves, operated by chains from the levers shown in the photograph, thus making the fountain available for use in freezing weather, when the old trough had to be shut down. The three-quarter inch riser from the valve is enlarged to one and one-half inches near the top, and the two elbows and three nipples are one and one-half fuches, with a strainer in one of them. This arrangement prevents the water from oming out with too much force, as the pressure on the mains is about nivety pounds. The buckets are extra heavy galvanized iron, fastened to the fountain with heavy steel chains, Swat the Ugly Signboard. In the campaign for the beautification of the country the effort to control rondside signs, posters and other advertisements is being fostered by the National Highways Protective society, says the Country Gentleman. Laws are now on the statute books of New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Pennsylvania specifically prohibiting the placing of such defacements on property belonging to these states. In a number of cities and towns similar ordinances have been passed and enforced. Few legislative steps can more ef ectively aid in improving the roadsides than the enforcement of these acts. In most states signs cannot be placed on private property without the consent of the owners, and here farmers have their opportunity to check the practice, fortunately not so widespread as it was, of painting conspicuous and hideous signs upon barns, fences and other structures in view of the highway.

"A barn with its roof or side painted with a glaring cure-all sign advertises the owner's deficiency. If he cannot afford to pay for a few gallons of paint for the buildings he would better leave them to be browned by ordinary weath-

A neat and modest roadside billboard for the form does not offend good taste and is a good business investment. But there is no possible excuse for the plastering of ferressand buildings with out of date posters. The vigorous work that is being done by the National Highways Presective society to check this abuse deserves every assistance

Up to the Railroad.

The town of Baldwin, Nassau county. N. Y., on the Long Island railroad, wants a new station and has taken an unusual way of enforcing its demand that the railroad company build it. Some fifty feet to the rear of the painfully plain frame structure, which does duty as a station, the enterprising "foremost men" of Baldwin have erected a big signboard on which, in letters a foot long, they call the attention of the traveling public to the subject

"Don't Judge the town by the station. We built the town; the railroad company built the station."

PITCHED A NO HIT GAME.

And Just For That the Manager of the Ball Club Fired Him.

"I'll bet that I am the only manager who ever fired a no hit pitcher right after he established that record," said Bobby Quinn, the veteran business manager of the Columbus American association team. "In the days that Tom Bryce owned the Columbus team he bought the Lima club, then in a bush league. One morning he told me to fly to Lima as fast as the steam cars would carry me. 'They tell me that they've got forty men on the payroll,' he said. 'Get up there and clean em out before they break me.'

"Up I goes and finds that they had only thirty-eight, all eating three square meals a day. A little grand jury work brought out the fact that some of them had never played professionally before and about ten of them had no shoes. gloves or uniforms. Most of them had not even practiced, because there wasn't enough equipment to go round I couldn't get them all into a room but we assembled in the park, and chased over half of them.

"The next day we were to have game at Van Wert, and the bush mas ager wanted to ship the whole gang over. 'Nothing doing,' said 1. 'Pick out about a dozen. En route it was fixed up to let Iron Mountain Miller, one of these big, awkward bushers, do the pitching. 'He's a bearent,' says the manager. 'Uncage him,' says I.

"I got up in the grand stand and watched him perform. He had nothng, not even a wrinkle on the ball, and those Van Wert guys just laid sack, and, wham, you could hear 'em whistle. Alex Reilly, out in center, caught sixteen line drives, and the two other fielders were pulling them down against the fence and making one handed catches after running a quarter of a city block. They laid down between innings to rest.

"Well, Icon Mountain shut them out without a hit or run, and the buttons flew off his shirt. After supper I fired him. 'What! Fire me,' he howled. after a no hit game? Didn't you hear all the people talking about it? 'Yes,' says 1, 'I beard them talking about it, but I saw it. On your way." -- Cincinnati Enquirer.

Look to Yourself.

There is an idea abroad among moral people that they should make their neighbors good. One person I have to make good--myself. But my duty to my neighbor is much more nearly expressed by saying that I have to make bim happy if I may .- Stevenson.
